ENTERTAINMENTS.

Hyperion Theater. James H. Wallack's company presented that successful English and American melodrama, "When London Sleeps," before a very large audience at the Hyperion last night. The standing room only sign was displayed before 8 o'clock. The production is full of human interest and portrays life as it is actually mains will be brought to Meriden for found in a great city. A young girl, interment beside her husband. The funeral arrangements will be announced snared by a worldly cousin. Her many narrow escapes from his villainous clutches are intensely exciting and interesting.

The company as a whole is well bal-anced. F. A. Yelvington as Captain Rodney Haynes, the villain; Miss Neva Harrison as Queenie Carruthers, and Frank I. Frayne as Sammy Blythe are especially good. There are four acts and eleven scenes, and some of them are wonderfully realistic. The escape by Queenle Carruthers from the top of a burning building is made by a daring walk across a telegraph wire. The pioduction will be given again this even-

The big revival of Bronson Howard's popular war play will be the New Year's attraction at the Hyperion next Monday and Tuesday, January 2 and 3. It introduces a series of the most real istic battle pictures ever seen on any stage. Immense audiences have ariser in their seats and cheered madly at the magnificent stage spectacle at the close of the third act. The orchestra plays
